GPB Capital Holdings LLC, a New York-based asset management firm, hired Macrina Kgil to serve as its new chief financial officer.

“We are honored to have Macrina join GPB as chief financial officer,” said David Gentile, chief executive officer of GPB. “With her extensive private equity background and public market experience, she is a tremendous addition to our GPB team.”

Kgil brings more than 16 years of financial services management to her role at GPB. Prior to joining the firm, she was the executive vice president and chief financial officer at OneMain Holdings Inc. (formerly known as Springleaf Holdings Inc.), a public consumer finance company. She also served as vice president of private equity at Fortress Investment Group, a global investment firm that currently has $70.2 billion of assets under management. While at Fortress, she was responsible for heading up financial due diligence for acquisitions, stabilizing base finance functions of newly acquired portfolio companies and leading efforts to take companies public or raise public debt.

Kgil started her career at PricewaterhouseCoopers as an audit manager for their offices in New York and South Korea and helped provide advisory services on numerous capital market transactions. She is a certified public accountant and received a bachelor of science in mineral and petroleum engineering from Seoul National University in South Korea.

GPB Capital Holdings focuses on income-producing private equity and real estate. GPB-sponsored entities have more than $725 million in assets to date and have acquired interests in 50 portfolio companies with revenues totaling more than $2.1 billion.
