KKR, a global investment firm, has joined the Artivest Open Network, a digital platform that provides financial advisors and qualified investors access to a selection of private alternative investments.

KKR manages multiple alternative asset classes, including private equity, energy, infrastructure, real estate and credit, with strategic partners that manage hedge funds.

The company is the latest asset manager to join the Artivest Open Network, with other recent additions that include EJV Capital and LaSalle Investment Management.

Artivest is a digital platform for hedge funds, private equity, and real assets founded in 2011. Run by fintech and investment industry executives in New York City and San Diego, the firm is independent and privately held by its employees and outside investors including Aquiline Capital Partners, Genstar Capital, KKR, and Thiel Capital.
